For the second year running the Firm is crowned by international magazine The Lawyer

London, 21st February, 2014 - For the second year running, the international law firm Gianni, Origoni, Grippo, Cappelli & Partners becomes Italian Law Firm of the Year at the Lawyer European Awards 2014.

The award was delivered last night during a ceremony held in London in front of an audience comprising leading members of the international legal community.

Judges felt that the firm “has raised its game in terms of client service over the past years and the judges felt they are the best European firm in cross border work of all kinds”.

The prize is awarded by a panel of judges including managing partners at private practice firms and in-house counsels at multinational companies and recognizes commitment to excellence across the board and a clear strategic vision.

Tomaso Cenci, Managing Partner of the firm states: “This is an important honour that demonstrates how much our firm is appreciated on an international level and how our development strategies, such as the launching of a new practice area dedicated to Wealth and Trust, have been valued. Moreover, we were instructed on a wealth of transactions and this has raised our profile globally. It is gratifying that the firm’s hard work and effort to deliver excellent service has received this latest recognition.”
